Hello everyone, Since Chrome 69 I have issues with the UI in certain websites using Font Awesome, like this one: Some of the text is smaller that it should be, and I can't figure out where is the problem. I recently got a new Razer Blade Pro and have been having a ton of issues with it. I've uninstalled the OS, installed it back and reinstalled drivers. Nothing has made any difference. On most websites it will work for a while before crashing and I can't seem to get it to work 100% of the time. It seems to be an issue with Chrome on Win 7x64. I've tried deleting and re-installing the browser but it still happens. It also happens on Mac OSX and a few other operating systems. It's the only browser I use. I've included a full log to show the issue. Would love any tips. Ybex Clipboard is one of many screen capture tools available on Windows. It works as a light and easy-to-use tool, which allows users to pick text or an image from a page, drawing, or other document and store it for later use. It can be useful for temporarily storing anything that is not on your desktop or in the recent documents list, such as web pages, email attachments, and other web or desktop programs. The program can save text, images, HTML files, and/or any other file type. The program also has a simple option to enable annotations. The program can store the data to multiple locations, letting you choose exactly where you want to keep your clipboard. If you're on a network that's protected by a network login, you can log into the network at any time and access your local files from other computers. The graphic interface is composed of a green box that contains the clipboard. By simply dragging a box to other parts of the screen or to the desktop, you can copy an image or a text. There are also buttons to copy the selected text, files, or URLs. For each file, you can also paste it back to a text editor, a web page, or into any other application of your choice. The application is available in various languages, including English, French, Japanese, Italian, German, Russian, and Spanish. The application is free to download from the Internet, but offers a few premium options that can be purchased from its related web site. The digital photo frame is still fairly new, coming to light only in the past year or two. Despite the fact that the technology is very limited in its capabilities, it has already found a significant niche. For example, there is currently a number of options for charging the digital frames, or simply to connect to a power supply so that it will be prepared to receive pictures. Also, the modern function may be quite useful in developing countries, where the power is limited. The best quality digital photo frames come from companies such as Crosstalk Video. They allow you to plug an external power supply, and charge your device, as well as taking the photos themselves. The frame is ready to work in 4K resolution, in addition to the standard resolution HD. There is one optional audio input jack, which allows you to play the sound from a standard Bluetooth device, or even from your smartphone. At the same time, there are several connectivity features which can be used, 09e8f5149f

The program can come in very handy for those who aren't particularly fond of the idea of filling up their clipboard with useless text files, images, and other such data. And if you click Yes to the question, the file will automatically be saved in the place you've specified. You can also capture the contents of any window, including desktop items. You can use the program in two different ways. You can either launch it by pressing the hotkey, or bring up the context menu and select it there. The software will take care of it from there on out. It can tell you the name of any song you hear. No buttons, no downloads, just a voice command that automatically shows the song's title and artist in a matter of seconds. And all of that happens on a Windows computer. In a similar fashion, Shazam Junior is what you get when you take the source code and compile it yourself on a mobile phone. While Shazam Junior uses either the built-in microphone or the default one that comes with the phone, Shazam for the desktop is using a microphone that is specifically designed for the task. As a result, Shazam Junior is not nearly as accurate as the desktop app, but should give you a pretty good starting point for testing your musical repertoire. Shazam Junior Features: First of all, Shazam Junior will automatically detect if your phone has a built-in microphone or the default one. If you've got the latter, you will get the best result. Once activated, the program will start playing the song on your phone and the results will be shown in a standalone interface
